If you are looking for the best free tablet and PC games for kids you have come to the right place. The best thing about these best games for kids is not that they are completely free, but many of them are as educational as they are entertaining. Combining learning with fun is the best way to get anything stuck. There are many free tablet and PC games for kids to choose from. We have games focused on creative problem solving and critical thinking through relaxing games that are a great way to pass the time. We know that a parent's time is already stretched out when you have kids to look after, so we've kept this list of the best free games for kids as short and sweet as we can. With that in mind, we've selected the best free kids games available on both tablet and PC for you and your little ones. Each title on this list is appropriate for all genres from 5 to 11 years old. They are also complete games (no extras needed) and each is free of violence - one less thing to worry about. And, of course, they're all guaranteed to give their children an explosion. Our guide to the best kids tablet10 best games for kids on Android tablets and iPadThese days, kids are more likely to experience computing and gaming on a tablet first than a home computer. To that end, our selection of tablets is a little younger. Everything on this list is rated 3+, according to Google, and should be safe even for very young children. However, Apple rates most of these games with a more conservative 4+, except Super Stickman Golf and Spaceteam, which are 9+. The games are all easy to control, easy to get in and fun to play. A note about IAP and ads: Unfortunately, it's hard to find a free game that's not out to make a dollar somewhere, so several games listed here will be offered in app purchases for in-game currency. And, some others will have ads. In the first case, you can disable system-level IPA on your device before handing it over to a child. With the latter, you should play the game yourself to make sure the ads are ok to show your child. 1. Sago Mini FriendsThe set of minigames of a sweet nature encourages creativity, dexterity and puzzle solving. Start by selecting a colorful character, which then explores a cartoon house neighborhood. Knock on a door and you're invited inside for an animated and entertaining game date. This could involve dressing up, hammering nails in a bird house, or enjoying a tasty snack. Everything is bright and joyful, and the game promotes empathy, with a friend looking sad if the booties are not evenly shared. Get Sago Mini Friends for Android and iOS. A For Windows PC is also available. This game does not have IAP/advertising.2. Lego Creator IslandsIn all honesty, we're sure that most parents would be happier watching kids playing with real Lego instead of virtual bricks on a tablet. But when the real is not an option, this official game is a good substitute. The game takes place in the Lego Creator Islands, where you'll collect brick bricks to buy Lego sets that are built with a few taps. While you're playing, you'll pick up all kinds of houses, vehicles and even cute bugs in blocks that roam around. As an added bonus, there is no possibility of painfully stepping on a plastic brick. Get Lego Creator Islands for Android and iOS. This game does not have IAP/advertising.3. Tap Kitchen 2 If your child regularly uses a tablet, you've probably already installed some Toca Boca games. They are a smart mix of education and play, and Toca Kitchen 2 is no exception. Unsurprisingly, Toca Kitchen 2 is about cooking. This game invites you to create meals, as you prefer. Develop your own recipes and foist your creations in a colorful cast of characters, whether you've carefully built a burger, or decided to throw a watermelon in the microwave and cover it in sauce. Get Toca Kitchen 2 for Android. This game does not have IAP/advertising. There is a paid version for iOS.4. Call Spit SpitLama Spit Spit is a shooting at the strange ball, with a flying flame that explodes mad cartoon enemies with a mix of spit and high-power weaponry. The controls are incredibly simple, which means even younger players can get on board. Collectible power-ups and flames (with their own background images) keep things interesting in the long run. The only drawback is that it is the spitting of Shooty Skies (Android/iOS), which is the best (and most surreal) game - although the lack of ads and IAP means that the flames get the guiding for this particular list. Get Call Spit Spit for Android and iOS. This game does not have IAP/advertising.5. Disney Crossy RoadThe original Crossy Road has intelligently redesigned Frogger, with block characters jumping through endless, thick landscapes, trying to avoid sinking into a river or being flattened by a train. But the masterstroke was a raft of unlockable characters. Disney Crossy Road is very similar, but uses Disney characters that often radically overha overha over the game's graphics and gameplay. More than 100 figures are there to be found, and although IAP lurks, playing and collecting coins in the game worlds is all you need to hook them all up. Get Disney Crossy Road for Android and iOS. This game is ad-supported, and has non-essential IPA for purchasing new characters.6. Frisbee Forever 2It is believed that releasing a plastic disc would be a garbage video game. Fortunately, Frisbee Forever 2 is more like a set of roller coasters, with you guiding your record through the doors, collecting stars along the way. There's a Nintendo clue to this windy arcade experience, with its vibrant visual effects, smart-level design and a basic control system suitable for everyone. And there are freemium fundamentals, you are rewarded with the game currency for every second played, even if a one-level attempt ends in failure. Get Frisbee Forever 2 for Android and iOS. This game features advertising, and has non-essential IAPs to more quickly unlock disks and zones.7. Fruit NinjaIn the fast Fruit Ninja, your digit a virtual sword, cutting pieces of fruit on the screen in two, and trying to avoid cutting bombs that would end the game. It is an ideal fodder for a tablet, as you can make pleasantly large bumps across the screen. But also the game offers local multiplayer, so two kids can zealously face their fruit cutting skills with each other. Get Fruit Ninja for Android and iOS. This game features advertising, and has non-essential IAP for in-game currency purchase.8. MekoramaWith its tiny isometric worlds finger-turning, and landscape mechanics, Mekorama brings Monument Valley to mind. But this game has no optical illusions similar to Escher, instead, it focuses on direct road search as it helps an ambrosing robot achieve its goals. It is a lovely, thoughtful, tactile experience, and on a tablet is suitable for parent/child play, with you working through the puzzles together. Once you're done with the 50 built-in levels, you can download more from the Internet, or make your own. Get Mekorama for Android and iOS. This game features optional IAP to tip the developer.9. Super Stickman Golf 3For many children, golf won't excite. But the Super Stickman universe doesn't participate in normal golf. Instead, you are thacking balls through side courses bigger than life - massive castles; laser-spread bases; floating islands. Although it's fun to play for yourself, and makes full use of larger screens (by allowing you to see more of each course and therefore aim more accurately), it also has fantastic types of multiplayer games. You can play turn-by-turn games with friends, or try your hand on frantic, crazy pit race skirmishes. Get Super Stickman Golf 3 for Android and iOS. This game features advertising, and IAP to unlock a premium update (plus turn-based multiplayer courses and slots) and in-game currency.10. SpaceteamSi you have several children with devices, Spaceteam is a deliciously crazy way to make them yell at each other in a vaguely productive way that in theory helps them work as a team. Specifically, a space team on a ship trying to escape an explosive star, with control panels designed by a sadist. Once the devices are connected, the instructions appear on the screen, but the controls may be on someone else's. So you'll have people shouting nonsense like someone turns on the hanging shunter, while figuring out if their own screen has a 'specbolt' slider. Just like in Star Trek.Get Spaceteam for Android and iOS. This game has a single optional IAP that unlocks new features and themes. Some games on PBS Kids Go include Kart Kingdom, Giant Hide and Seek and Oh Noah! Lost and found. These games help children learn math, problem solving, and other skills. Kart Kingdom allows kids to ride their own custom go-kart around a world full of activity. After choosing their character and kart, players can roam the game freely, choosing different missions and collecting items along the way. Pick Up Power-ups of different types allows children to create new items through the game's manufacturing system. Kart Kingdom emphasizes creativity and exploration, but its more complex aspects can be confusing for younger players. Giant Hide and Seek is a simple math game designed for younger kids. The game works as a series of videos marked with short interactive sequences. Children should help hide characters under various objects, and the game emphasizes how many characters are grouped together. After the kids have successfully hidden all the characters, the game helps them practice the basics of adding by totaling the number of friends they have hidden. In Oh Noah! Lost and Found, children take control of the characters in the PBS series Oh Noah! Selecting from different levels, players navigate a side-scrolling game world and search for missing items. Along the way, various characters and mini-games help children work on both problem solving and Spanish language vocabulary. Some of the animal games on the PBS Kids website include Jungle Rangers, Chicken Coop, Rocky Mountain Roundup and Animal Match. The game Jungle Rangers involves searching for animals in the jungle. At Chicken Coop, children enjoy building and tending to a chicken coop that is home to a hundred girls. With Rocky Mountain Roundup, children search for living things on a mountain. The game Animal Match is a memory matching challenge that features several animals. Build-a-Bot, Inventor's Workshop, Star Gazing, Dino Dash and Jungle Jeopardy are a selection of science games available on PBS Kids. Build-a-Bot gives children the opportunity to be fake engineers while building a robot with the help of Curious George. Inventor Workshop combines the invention with a course of activity, and Star Gazing allows children to explore the stars and outer space. Dino Dash is a racing game with various types of dinosaur characters. With Jungle Jeopardy, children work on creating an ecosystem in the rainforest. Make the Cake is a Peg & Cat game where Peg is making a cake for his friends. Her cat is nearby causing a mess while she bakes the birthday cake. At Clifford's Big Parade, the player helps Clifford and his friends make a float for the next parade. The player chooses different elements for placement on the float and helps to customize it. Creature Features is a Sci Girls game that follows Izzie as she finds animals in the park and photographs them for her book. Book.
